VOLUME 2, ISSUE 7.

July 2007

Dear WRGN Supporters,

Unicorns, Remote Viewing, the Path of Light, the Caduceus, and details of events for July comprise this newsletter.

Newly digitised lectures include the Holistic Philosophy of Nature by Prof. Glen Schaefer and Male and Female Energies by Gordon Strong. Meditation (courtesy of MARK AGE) is the latest addition to the on-line article archive.

"Man Know Thyself" by Dr Howard Smith.

This ancient commandment was inscribed above the portal of the ancient Greek Temple at Delphi, and it is no less important today than when it was written in the First Millennium B.C. Everyone is hungry for "self-knowledge"; character analysis, personality tests, astrology, various "self-realisation" techniques all have widespread appeal in an age where personal values are increasingly being threatened. Yoga, religion, meditation etc. all aim to increase awareness of the deeper levels of our being.

But why? Is this perhaps a selfish aim? In the Old Testament, the first four commandments dealt with Man's relationship with God. In the New Testament, Christ tells us to "love one another". No contemplation of one's navel here! We must turn our attention outwards, not inwards.

To appreciate that there is really no contradiction, we can consider another ancient saying: "As above, so below!" The meaning of this can be expressed in many ways. Essentially, we are all told that the whole cosmos is reflected in man; everything which is outside man (the whole of nature) can be found inside him too, and vice versa. Hence self-knowledge leads to knowledge of the world, and other people, while true knowledge of outer things illuminates our own essential nature.

Increased concern with "self" in the highest sense (eg. respect for life and individual freedom) has led to an awakening (or should one say re-awakening) of a concern with the whole planet as a similarly living conscious "self", the "Earth Goddess". Increasingly people feel respect, even reverence, for the earth as a living being. They feel that there is a limit to how much we can violate her with our life-destroying technological practices before she decides to shake us off her back.

It is not difficult to see that the outer threats to human dignity that are currently in the news; warfare, terrorism, famine, waste of resources, unemployment, etc. are, at least in part, a reflection of our own inner violence, greed, selfishness and apathy (naturally, we ourselves are not responsible - it is always these qualities in others, never ourselves!) To get to know ourselves a little better is inseparable from getting to know the world, but in addition, if we proceed in the right way, we gain the power to be more useful, to serve more effectively the needs of the world.

These thoughts can form the basis of a simple "check-list" with which to compare the many spiritual and religious movements which abound today. We can ask of any such movement to what extent does it: (1) Help us to understand ourselves, (2) help us to understand the world, (3) form an integrated whole from these two complementary parts, (4) manifest as down-to-earth practical activities which help others.

Understanding of self and the world, each one supporting and strengthening the other, and the whole leading to a worthwhile service in the community through love - these are some of the prerequisites of a healthy spiritual path. A fifth could easily be added; "Freedom to pursue a path without the "spiritual" or moral pressure of a leader, guru or whatever". This does not mean we are too proud to learn from others, but we must not expect others to take spiritual responsibility for us. Some movements claim that we must submit ourselves to a guru (their own guru, of course) to avoid self-deception. But what if we chose the wrong guru? No, we must be prepared to take full responsibility for our own path, perhaps making many false starts and drifting down numerous blind alleys, willing to learn from all, but never forgetting the needs of the world which provides us with all these opportunities.

A-Z of the Esoteric Being.

Caduceaus – The Caduceaus is two intertwined serpents on a pole and is an attribute of various goddesses in the Ancient Near East, especially Hermes. This is a development of the single serpent and pole, representing the unchanging world axis in contrast with the ever changing phenomenal world. The main feature of the phenomenal world is duality – light and dark, conscious and unconscious, masculine and feminine intertwined (represented by two serpents). At head and tail they are united, at the beginning and end they are one, but in between they are taken apart and put together, differentiated and reunited, coagulated and dissolved in the process of living.

They are serpents of force and form but by their intertwining they create the different spheres or worlds formed by the loops in their bodies (ie the different levels of existence, or conscious life in man).

The Science of Remote Viewing. by David Kingston

We as a race of people have discarded without thought, or sometimes knowledge, some of our most important and essential natural skills. We now only see with our eyes, ignoring our minds, or feel with our hands, disregarding our instincts and believing only what these limited senses allow us to see, and yet so much passes us by without our knowledge. The ability to view things distant in time and space is only one of these skills. After a good deal of consideration, and some gentle persuasion, I decided to run Remote Viewing Courses (in 1998) so that everyone can start to re-awaken these dormant skills. Remote viewing is a proven science which has been used by governments and military intelligence units around the world as a spying technique for many years. As a member of the Institute of Remote Viewers, I and many other trained Remote Viewer Operatives, feel that this skill should be re-learned by the public and used for the "great good of mankind", something that can be achieved with this science. An introductory day to the Science of Remote Viewing is scheduled for 22 July and held just outside of Dorchester, Dorset.

The introductory day will consist of the history of RV, explanatory hand outs and your chance to put RV to the test. For more information about the day or about Remote Viewing, contact David (01305 251852) or Cathy (01305 756499).

Book Review - The Path of Light by Edmund Marriage

Christian O'Brien's translation of the Askew and Bruce Codices, (2nd century AD Egyptian Coptic copies of original documents recording the spoken words of Jesus of Nazareth), are presented within the text of The Path of Light. They provide authoritative and detailed support of the existence and journeys of the soul and provide the scriptural evidence that Jesus taught Surat Shabd Yoga, and should be recognised as a Perfect Living Master.

The text supports the existence and spiritual nature of our ancestor Gods, who re-started agriculture and civilisation c. 9,300 BC, following global catastrophe. They founded Kharsag - the Sumerian head enclosure, known later as the Hebraic Garden of Eden.

The diffusion of knowledge and agriculture around the world from Southern Lebanon is demonstrated within the scholarship and research presented by Christian and Barbara Joy O'Brien in their preceding books The Genius of the Few and The Shining Ones.

Following his attempt to restore good government through kingship, Jesus is teaching the ancient druidic/oriental wisdom to his inner circle of chosen disciples after his Crucifixion, so that they could carry on his work following his Ascension. His words were recorded and witnessed by the disciple scribes

Matthew, Philip and Thomas; a requirement of authentication under Hebraic law.

Two years after the crucifixion in AD 35 Christianity entered Britain, with the founding of the Nazarene Church in AD 37. This was accepted by King Caractacus, and the British Royal family, who were relations of Jesus. Joseph ha Rama Theo (James the Just) in his role of Decurio, (procurer of minerals) with a grand daughter married to the nephew of Caractacus, Apostle Simon Zelotes, and Astrolobus were all present in Britain around this time, linking Jesus to the Druidic Schools and the high culture of Britain, and indicating Britain as a starting point for his mission.

For further information contact Edmund Marriage. Email Patrickfound@btopenworld.com, Tel. 01963 251772.

Unicorns. by Margaret Merrison

The subject of legend and enchantment in both the Eastern and Western mythological traditions, Unicorns are also mentioned in the Bible and in the work of JK Rowling (Harry Potter). One can also be found on the Royal Arms of Great Britain standing opposite the Lion.

Creatures of the etheric, many Unicorns are now making themselves known and are looking to connect with humans, linking with some as their personal helpers. They are coming to this planet at the present time to help us raise our energy vibrations and that of the Earth.

Unicorns have a beautiful, playful, pure energy and they love to have fun. These magnificent horses with a spiralling golden horn of pure light radiating from their third eye chakra, are associated with energy vibrations that are much higher than the speed of sound or light, so that we cannot normally see or hear them. Like Angels, we can feel their presence and also have a knowing that they are with us and want to help us.

The Unicorn Centre in Chard is holding a Unicorn Day on 7th July 2007, which co-incidentally is a special date: 07-07-07. On this exciting and magical day we will have the opportunity to learn more about Unicorns, connect with them and in doing so glimpse into their world.

The Unicorn Day is facilitated by Margaret Merrison, who runs the Unicorn Centre and is a Diana Cooper Angel and Ascension Master Teacher and a Reiki Master. For further information please visit www.unicorncentre.co.uk or email Margaret@unicorncentre.co.uk
