

Wessex Research Group Network Newsletter

VOLUME 6, ISSUE 6.

June 2011

June is the month when we welcome the Shaftesbury Positive Living group and the Totnes Astrology Group to the Wessex Network.

The latest addition to the on-line digital lecture archive is Freewill and Evil by Nigel Blair. Man as a Focal Point for Channelling the Light by Sir George Trevelyan is the latest addition to the on-line article archive.

Anchoring the Light on Earth

By Sir George Trevelyan

The Universe is calling upon us to perform our cosmic duty and respond to a great energetic shift that is taking place; one that is opening up the entirety of the universe to us. Through this shift we begin to realise that there are aspects the self that are not only in a physical form on Earth but that sit in other dimensions; a higher or soul self.

Dimensions in time and space are beginning to overlap as the solar system ascends to a higher energetic resonance. At a human level our relationship with energy is changing. We start to experience that we are part of a great connected web of consciousness. Soul bonds are renewed as people of a like vibration begin to resonate together. Our task is as one to unite with our higher selves and so anchor the light of Christ on Earth. In so doing we bring to birth a new and a higher humanity.

If ever there was a time for courage amidst chaos it is now for this higher way requires us to open to the universe, open our heart centres so that out of our freewill we begin to live out our earthly lives through love. Every universal law is founded upon unconditional love. We are being invited to align our individual resonance with the essence of the universe. We can do this by drawing into ourselves those higher aspects of the self that previously having sat detached in other dimensions are moving ever closer enabling this exciting union and a quantum leap forward in our consciousness to take place.

The first task is to clear out all the anxieties which have taken possession of our lives and create a centre of inner stillness. This is the first object of all meditation. First become quite still physically with spine erect and check through your body to see that you are not tensing brow, jaw, neck, shoulders, hands or legs. Enter the inner chapel and sweep out the cobwebs and drive out any disturbing thoughts. Quietly watch the breathing rhythm and note how it gets ever, more gentle until you are in absolute inner stillness. You may feel that you are, in a sense, 'being breathed' by the universe. It is as if your heart were breathing. You can in your imaginative experience inhale spiritual light down through the crown of the head, impregnating the body, filling the heart, to be breathed out in love for all being.

You have created something that was not there before, a protected centre or chamber of stillness and tranquility. It is like a cathode ray, a vacuum which begins to glow when an electric charge is passed through it. You have in the surrounding psychic field made a glowing point of stillness defended against attack by dark emotions. In time the alarms and fears are just not there anymore. One begins actively to experience the qualities or attributes of the Higher Self which are, basically, stillness and tranquility, courage and love, gentleness and joy.

Every fibre of your being can be impregnated by the light. Just as there can be no more darkness in the room when we turn on the light, so the dark and negative emotions of the Lower Self cannot enter at the same time as the positive attributes of the Higher Self. We are sounding positive soul attributes within ourselves; we are reaching up towards the spiritual worlds. Against all odds we can sound courage in the heart and we begin to discover the great truth known to the Greeks - "Man know thyself and thou shalt know the Universe".

Book Review - The Singing Rocks of Rahla. A Himalayan Pilgrimage

By Carol Fraser

There has been much public debate lately on the question of God. Two thousand years of institutionalised religion, with all its fixed and very inadequate images, have blunted our senses and closed our hearts to where and how the divine might really be found.

This book shows how we can all successfully walk our own inner path through an immersion into the wonders of nature, for instance, into the awesome grandeur of the Himalayas, which, by their sheer scale, reduce us to our smallest essence; pure being lights up in us. At the same time we are invited to soar into the heights and expand far beyond the limits of our everyday mind.

There comes a point on the spiritual path when the outer frameworks, the exercises and disciplines that we have learned, no longer seem to serve us. We come up against blocks that we cannot move. We are faced with the necessity of entering the "Way behind the Ways", which requires a quality that I call "barefoot wandering".

The author draws upon her own journeys, recounting so many incidents, humorous, awe-inspiring and dangerous, that pushed her beyond her usual mental frameworks, released her from those narrow boxes of day-to-day feelings.

In this critical time of transition, as we approach 2012, it is of vital importance that we find our own inner path to union with our light seed, which means union with the divine. This book can give heart to any seeker of truth in their journey. For further information log on to www.betterworldbooks.co.uk
