The Nature of Ascension

By Sirius

I am Sirius. I journey the universe as a servant for the light, for creation. My companions and I provide assistance to our less evolved cosmic brothers and sisters when it is most needed (usually in times of transition). We have evolved beyond linear time we are multi-dimensional and willingly exist as part of a great interconnected web of universal consciousness. By default, this is always in a state of transition.

We have visited many planets located within many galaxies, often seeding worlds with creative cosmic intelligence and creating the being or species charged with developing self consciousness. On any world there is always one species charged with this task (sometimes more). Having developed self consciousness, they then assist in the development of consciousness for the rest of their home planet and then for other planets.

This is all part of the grand scheme through which the universe evolves, a process catalysed by the periodic arrival of new energy streams to a specific area within a solar system. These incoming energies enable a planet (and all life and consciousness associated with it) to raise itself (ascend) to a higher energetic frequency and so evolve.

Ascensions that lift worlds from 3rd to 5th dimensional frequencies can be the most challenging. Beings living out 3rd dimensional lives are often constrained by linear time. The totality of their consciousness is often immersed in coping with the demands of living within the dense energy of matter and the material environment. The physical body is the densest aspect of the self because it is comprised of elements. It also vibrates at the lowest vibration, lower than the other mortal bodies, the astral, emotional and mental.

You the inhabitants of planet Earth are presently in this position. Your home planet is ascending and as you are part of the Earth your physical and other bodies have also begun to realign themselves. As the beings that have developed self consciousness the universe is asking you fulfil your potential as planetary co-creators, and re-integrate yourselves with planetary and universal consciousness.

You are fully equipped to make this transition should you choose to. We are talking about a full reintegration with not only planetary but also cosmic consciousness, with the reality of functioning as multi dimensional, semi ethereal beings that work selflessly with and for the development of consciousness on Earth.

The process of planetary ascension might be likened to the solving of a Rubik's cube. At the outset there is the illusion of normality that is represented by the random configuration of coloured squares on the cube. With each turn of the cube a new pattern (reality) emerges. For the Earth each phase of tectonic adjustment might be likened to a turn of the cube. Eventually there is one final twist when the colours have completely realigned themselves.

All life on the Earth is step by step moving towards this point, the final turn of the cube. Soon you will begin to experience everything in terms of energy; including the energetic templates that are created through the way you presently live out your lives. It is only then that you will understand that your old ways are finished, and that you have to come together as a human family and be part of a new and higher human consciousness; something that is often expressed as the marriage of individual consciousness with group consciousness.

You do not face this transition alone and we are making ourselves known so that when conditions allow we can come among you and work with you in partnership helping you to make speedy headway into your a new reality on a new Earth aligned to a different energetic template.

Book Review: On the Origin of Diversity

By Robin McMahon

This book is a celebration of the genius of diversity, the wonder of everything that is. In what is a fascinating book, the author considers how diversity challenges and enhances the quality of our lives and how as a human community we respond to these challenges.

Many different ideas, theories and perspectives are presented including the potential of spirituality, the origin and implications of religion, the mystery of God, belief and faith, the concepts of happiness, depression and wealth and the evolution of man.

Robin also considers the human legacy that we are creating through our wilful ignorance towards the concept of diversity. We perceive it but how do we relate to it?

As Einstein once said: "the most beautiful thing we can experience is the mysterious. It is the source of all true art and all science"

In what is a meaty volume the author provides some unique insights into our interpretation of the mysterious which can in turn help us discover our own answers. For further information about the book log on to www.origin-of-diversity.com

Book Review: Parallel Worlds

By Josephine Sellers

From as far back as she could remember Josephine had experienced psychic phenomenon. She knew she had lived before and seemed to carry within her a passion for exploring what life is really about. With her husband Brian by her side, their joint curiosity evoked for them a challenging, interesting and sometimes exciting life, but more importantly, they discovered that they had led many lives, some of them together upon ancient sites in Dorset and Somerset. They were on a mission this time to rectify and adjust the energies generated by the events of centuries past.

Josephine's story recounts her interactions with what she likes to call 'yesterday's people', some of whom she had spent past life times with. They offered her support and reminded her of what she had forgotten. Her journey, explorations and studies lead her to know that this forgotten knowledge, though often dormant, can be remembered and re-engaged. Her story is one of hope and encouragement it contains a real 'feel good' factor. For further information log on to www.josephinesellers.com or www.archivepublishing.co.uk
