December 2012

December 2012; a month full of promise with a wonderful array of festive and other events planned for the time ahead.

Wherever you are and whatever you are doing may you experience a peaceful and love filled Winter Solstice, Christmas and New Year.

Peace, Love Cooperation and Coordination – The Four Step Christ Matrix

By Mark-Age

Step One: Peace. Wherever there is resistance, a gridlock or blockage-whether in one's individual development or in any group conflict or impasse- the first and most emphatic step is to declare peace. Stop the disruption. Halt the disagreement. Cease the hostilities.

If this is strictly something within yourself, you must rest in the peace of spirit's will and knowledge. Get rid of the anger, fear sense of injustice and inequality. Hold fast to the tranquillity that is in God's laws, fairness and timing. Be one with your God Self.

Step Two: Love. When peace has been established, we can work individually and collectively on love. It takes time and is not simple. Love means first and foremost love of your higher self. It means self respect, self worth and self reliance. You are a unique and special person who has individual needs. So, accept that.

Work from that base. At the same time, understand that every other person in the situation whether it is one or several billion others –likewise has special needs and viewpoints.

Love also must include the situation or the problem in disturbance. Even if this is a conflict within yourself it has an energy or separate identity in itself. If it is a difficulty in a family or a business, the identity of the joint union is a composite of you and the other person or persons involved. This separate unit can be a country, a new social program and international compromise. It is essential to love the shared common ground

By formulating the love for each unique part of the whole, we love the whole project which is whatever the conflict is all about. A new condition must be the goal of each one. Love for yourself, love for the others, love for the objective itself: This singular emotion carries us to the next step in the new matrix.

Step Three: Cooperation. When the estrangement concerns yourself individually, cooperation is necessary on all levels of your being: mind, soul and body. In psychological terminology that is super-conscious, subconscious and conscious. Each of these three levels has to have respect for the functions of the other two.

We have been evolving through time immemorial to learn how to cooperate with the three aspects of our being; our trinity expression in the mortal incarnation. Everything in the cleansing process, the discipline of aligning ourselves with the high self purposes, is to learn this cooperation, so that we are whole or holy.

When we are dealing with two or more individuals we still desire the cooperation of each person's trinity of expression. Yet it expands even farther, as we must cooperate with each one in disagreement. If two people are in the situation this is a fairly simple equation. But in a family of four or in a community of thousands or millions, the task becomes more complex.

As light workers, we are always projecting for solutions to whole groups consisting of millions – even seven billion, when seeking planetary changes-so we cannot be discouraged or overwhelmed by this new matrix. We must recognise that our tasks are excruciatingly complicated. In fact to accomplish all the goals we are setting forth in this new matrix, may take two hundred years or two thousand. Peace, Love Cooperation and Coordination – The Four Step Christ Matrix continues on Page 4.

Love is the Transformer

“Love is the key. It is the deciding factor which changes the blood stream, the chemistry, the energy form of your entire make up physically and then works forward into the light to meet its self equalising incoming source. This is the point in you where you become transformed and will perform more clearly the works of God: As you are gods in the making.” Sananda; October 21, 1969

Step Four: Coordination. This is the most difficult step, because an entirely new approach has to be achieved in developing a new format. The format we are striving for in our personal healing, may be a new lifestyle, a new career, a new concept in our everyday challenges. The new format in a marriage may be new responsibilities for each partner; in a family new respect and opportunities for each member. In a community new programs may have to be inaugurated to achieve higher goals and to remove unproductive ones. In national and international politics we already have to face broader philosophies for commerce and social exchange.

When developing upon this new agreed upon format everyone must receive some benefit from it otherwise we are not coordinating. We are continuing the blockages of the “blame game”, the non productive accusations, the selfish perspectives, the self repeating repetitions. The outcome of that is more of the same. But individually and collectively at this period of time in our evolution from material impasses into spiritual growth and freedom we are being forced to change our perspectives and our actions. Breaking through this steel door of [mankind’s] resistance with the diamond crystal drill [of Christ projections], consisting of these four essential ingredients, will bring about the desired new heaven on this revitalised new Earth. So begin this formula now: peace, love, cooperation, coordination. Each of these four ingredients is essential in creating the diamond crystal drill that can bore away at every resistance.

With the destruction of this door, by our unified actions we will rend the seventh veil and shall enter into the great adventure of the fourth dimension: the Golden Age of Aquarius now dawning. For further information about Mark-Age log on to www.thenewearth.org/markage.html

Book Review: Life a Players Guide

By Jan Stone

Many of the young – and not-so-young - attempt to avoid the apparent tedium, misery or sheer boredom of everyday life by escaping into fantasy worlds on their games consoles. This book asks the reader to consider an interesting possibility. What if life is a meticulously planned experience; one that in fact turns out to be closely mirrored by those role-player computer games? Would that mean the Purpose of Life is simply to work through the many levels and challenges, building up valuable experience as we go? If so, how might that change the way we play?

Life: A Player’s Guide leads its readers through the amazing implications of this possibility. It also goes much further. It dares to suggest that each of us is not only the lowly game player, participating in the adventure and stashing away experience points on the way; but also – at a higher level of consciousness – a holographic portion of the designer and creator of The Game itself. Looked at this way, life becomes a cosmic, multi-dimensional, co-creative experience which we are building with every new thought and choice. For further information please go to Jan Stone’s author page on <http://www.amazon.co.uk>

Book Review: Journal for Star Wisdom 2013

Edited by Robert Powell

Journal for Star Wisdom 2013 includes articles of interest concerning star wisdom (Astrosophy), as well as a guide to the correspondences between stellar configurations during the life of Christ and those of today. This guide comprises a complete sidereal ephemeris and aspectarian, geocentric and heliocentric, for each day throughout the year.

In this year’s journal there are articles on the new science of Astrogeographia, concerning the one-to-one correspondence between the celestial sphere and the earthly globe. David Tresemer examines the significance of Neptune in world events, and William Bento offers important perspectives on the dark shadows of Neptune and there are also articles by Wain Farrants, Kevin Dann, Lacquanna Paul and Claudia McLaren Lainsion, as well as Sally Nurney’s monthly astronomical previews. The Winter Solstice and the Impulse of Love

By Marjorie Evans

Much has been said about the Winter Solstice of 2012. I for one keenly await this event and have often pondered (and still can only wonder) how this unique cosmic moment might unfold.

35 years ago past champions of the new age movement such as Sir George Trevelyan spoke of this event as a great opportunity, the moment when individually and collectively we can take a quantum leap forward in the evolution of our human consciousness; a leap that heralds the true beginning of the Aquarian Age.

Sir George (and others) often spoke about the Impulse of Love something so strong that it would sweep through the entire fabric of planet Earth. 35 years on and now an old woman, I wonder if that moment is about to arrive. Below is my own summation of all those years of pondering.

*Imagine a time, a day like today,
When the future became the present,
One fine day we were swept away on a rising tide of love,
There was you and me, there was everybody,
No more fear, lies or greed just trust in Love,
One love, one love something I was thinking of,
For you me and everybody,
One Love.*
